Dear F

I feel that yesterday we hit ~~2~~ ^{first} walls. The ^{first} wall was: je suis là depuis 3 jours = I have been here for 3 days.

Suddenly you faced a big difficulty.
I think this wall has a story behind it.

Then we hit a second wall: the English tense system. I guess this wall, too, has a history.

To help knock these two walls down ~~it~~ ^{it} might be useful if you tell me about the building of the walls. When were their foundations laid?

What feelings do they arouse in you.

~~I know~~ I know you have a very clear analytical mind and yet yesterday your mind seemed to desert you. Odd, very odd.

Warmly yours,

Monday

Dear F,

I like writing letters to the folk I work with and I hope we have a rich correspondence over this week together.

I get the impression from the internet that your wife is very interested, as a painter, in the human body; ~~that~~ however you said that the stuff on the internet is not representative of her work. Please can you outline, in your letter to me, the stages her art has gone through.

My brother-in-law is a sculptor, J. , and I love the intense, deep realism of his work. When he creates leeks in a bas-relief I want to put them in a pan and boil them! J. lives in the South of France.

I look forward to your response.
Wandy yours,
