Dear Mid-Course People,

Michael Rundell, our guest this morning, will take us down the thrilling paths of the corpus revolution. Have the last 25 years been as momentous in terms of language description as any since the time when the Greeks "invented" descriptive grammar? The corpus linguists have changed my understanding of my mother tongue ⁱⁿ ~~2~~ ways I could not have dreamed about when I started teaching EFL in Athens in 1964.

He is (a) a brilliant lexicographer in the new mould (b) an inventive and imaginative mind, fed by daily and weekly discoveries
(c) a really nice person who generously helped to give breath and life to our magazine, www.hltmag.co.uk.

All business is transacted as per our Terms and Conditions, copy available on request.

Warmly yours,

Ma
