in a great blaze of glory tied to a brewery

they put the word in for me the children take up a lot of my time the prices have gone through the ceiling they have their fair share of wine the men try and wind you up it's a bit snobby, if you like, I think...

over and out of an evening time

things started to go badly for him....

I got redundancy money... in a lump sum a mock paper (in year six) nagging him and nagging him and nagging him in the summer it's very very hectic a lovely location

he's spending money at a rate of knots this ties in to what happened later there's lots of firms bubbling up all around youngsters like alchopops a kind of mallet thing that's the only let-up in the law he has always been a little bit eccentric
