Evaluation questionnaire

Many questionnaires we are asked to fill in treat us as consumers and ask us to evaluate what we have been offered.

This questionnaire is different. It asks you to reflect on your own inner process over the last three days. Its aim is twofold: for you to stop and think on yourself, for us to see whether the course worked out.

This questionnaire assumes your creativity and particular genius and avoids trivial questions about what we set before you. The only significant thing is what happened in your head and your heart over these days !!!

1. Please, describe three important moments in your thinking and feeling process over the past days.

- a) awareness that positive inner states effect on learning / feeling
- b) realize how important evolution is for us
- c) sharing experiences and feelings

2. Please, describe three bad moments in your experience here:

- a) participants often late
- b) people coming in and going out during plenary sessions
- c) timetable : too short lunch breaks

3. Please, outline ONE contradiction that you feel has arisen within you during the course.

to feel some resistance to change my teaching approach for fear to be inadequate

4. Please, list your "resolutions" for the coming school year:

a) more attention towards our students' needs

b) share my experience here with my colleagues

c) reflection on what we did at the course

5. Overall, how successful have you been in making this course fruitful for you:
