Dear Everybody,

When you come to think of it we are in a quite bad place for showing you the realities of present day Britain. How many black folk do you see on the streets of this town? How many Muslims? How many Sikhs (with their turbans)?

East Kent is a "home <sup>country</sup> county", it is a commuter county, it is saturated with conservative MP's, it still retains the eleven+ which sends 25% of kids to Grammar School and 75% to secondary school. Yes, down here we live in the grip of age-old conservatism.

I hope you are not getting over-tired. This kind of highly personal socio-anthropological quest can really take it out of you emotionally and intellectually. Yet we only have one weeny week.

You are <sup>already</sup> giving me a really good time - thank you, Kairo
