

Tuesday

ALL
Dear Everybody,

I was happy yesterday morning. I was happy with our group and I was happy with the work we did.

Do you remember some of the language we used:

From H to the person between W and O

From U to the person on A's right

From K to the person opposite E

Do you remember that we worked on a long sentence that talked about Beckett's cathedral, old buildings, tea houses and pubs.

Do you remember the story about the waitress who lost nothing on those two transactions. The young girl was clever but the old man sitting in the corner was stupid, very stupid.

Do you remember my letter in which I talked to you about the old brewery in Faversham, the little town where I live?

What did I learn about you yesterday? I learnt that Kalle and Kora once flew to Ecuador and visited the Galapagos islands.

I learnt that H buys coffee machines from Italy.

I learnt that W lives in the suburbs of Hamburg not in the city centre. He and his wife live in an old house. They own their house.

I discovered that H originally came from Austria but I did not find out from where in Austria. She can still speak her Austrian dialect.

I found out that A is Polish and that she has lived in Hamburg for 11 years.

I learnt that B still has very old parents in Basel in Switzerland. She goes to see them five or six times a year.

As you can see we exchanged a lot of information yesterday morning.

Yours sincerely,

Mario
